How Women Even of Ordinary Features May Be Wonderfully Transformed, Revealed by the French Specialist, Mme. Louvre, in a Stirring Book, Sent Free to Readers of The Herald.

Every woman reader of this paper should send for the thrilling book of secrets of French Beauty by Mme. Louvre. Do it to-day; you may never again have the same opportunity.

The most startling secrets of beauty, long guarded with zealous care, are now revealed. Every page gives a thrill of excitement. Beauty that you never before dreamed of may now be yours. Girls, middle-aged women, elderly women, and you, reader, have the opportunity never before heard of in this country.

Town the past ten days.

Propellors on Exhibition.

Claude Grahame-White will look over the exhibit of airship propellers at the Chamber of Commerce and probably select one or two to replace the propeller he smashed in his monoplane yesterday. A local firm has had a half dozen on exhibition for several days, and the aviator will endeavor to obtain a suitable one to repair his machine.

Beauty is no longer a matter of guess-work and months of hard work. It is here and now. Send for the book to-day. You may say it is too good to be true and probably you will doubt. The facts are plain. The results are there. The book is free. All is explained, the se-crets of how to quickly remove wrin-kles and crows' feet; and how to make yourself look from five to twenty years younger. The process is wonderful. It shows you how to make freckles and younger. The process is wonderful. It shows you how to make freckles and spots disappear; how to make your skin as pure, soft and luxurious as the petals of a rose; how to have clear, sparkling eyes; how to make your eyebrows and eyefasites and hair grow so luxuriously that you may appear like some goddess.

Learn the way yourself. The book of secrets tells you. It tells you, too, how to develop the bust in a luxurious manner; how to fill out the hollows in your neck and shoulders and make you plump and strong; how to make your neck look postitiely angelie; how to make your positively angelic; how to make your neck look positively angelic; how to make your cheeks look naturally rosy all the time; how to get rid of blackheads and plmples; how to get back the original color of your hair; in short, how to change yourself from mere ordinariness to a native of Hanover Germany. from mere ordinariness to a native of Hanover, Germany, but came thrilling beauty.

MAY HAVE NO CANDIDATE

Massachusetts Democrats Cannot Delegate Nominating Power. Boston, Oct. 14.-The State ballot las ommission this evening decided th Democratic State convention had no right to delegate to the committee of four the power to name a candidate for lieutenant governor. This sustains the objections made by Secretary of State Olin to the certificate of nomination of Clifton R Loring, of Medford, as the temporar; candidate for lieutenant governor. The commission did not state its rea sons for its decision. The only way the Democrats can get a candidate for lieu tenant governor upon the official ballot is by some one running on nomination papers. The last day for filing nomina tion papers for that or other State offiers is next Monday. Representative Thomas P. Riley, of Malden, who has been one of the candidates for the lieutenant governor nomination, this afternoon, after learning of the commission's decision, began circulating papers. They will require 1,000 signatures.

THE DOCTORS.

I lived on rice and sifted milk and prunes and squashes, and said: "I feel as fine as silk, and medicine all bosh is! This healthful rubbish that I eat, relieved the glanders, it cured hay fever, aching feet, and yellow janders. The doctors work an awful graft; they give you oceans of beastly dope and then a raft of pills and potions. They try to cure a case of mumps with saws and axes, and poisoned drugs and stomach pumps, and high their tax is. If you'd be feeling well and nice, ignore their joshes, and fill yourself with milk and rice, and prunes and squashes!" I flayed the doctors every day, in print and forum, and came to think that I was a high-cockalorum. And then I had an awful dose of stomach trouble; I rolled around and chewed my toes, all bent up double. The doctors came from near and far; their dope they blended, and poured it where my innards are, and pain was ended. I was so near Death's stream of ice I heard its washes! Doggone the sifted milk and rice and prunes and squashes! WALT MASON. (Copyright, 1910, by George Matthew Adams,)

CONQUEST OF AIR NOT YET COMPLETE, DECLARES WHITE

Standing in an automobile before the Benning grand stand, five minutes after his second machine had been dashed to pieces against the far side fences, Grahame-White, through a megaphone,

"I am indeed sorry your entertainment has been marred by these two accidents, the first of which was due to a piece of the biplane machinery having been lost, causing the plane to come down rather awkwardly and unexpectedly, and the second to the swerving of the monoplane by the wind, which caused it to go astray and become so badly damaged it is beyond further use to-day. The accidents go to show the unreliability of aerial navigation at this stage of development. There will be no further flights this afternoon, but you may have return checks for to-morrow, when I shall give a complete programme here. I thank you for your patronage."
